Are Our Children At Risk?

Free 2Hr Event Sun. Feb 12, 2017, 3-5PM, Fulton, MD - Open to the Public

Food Insecurity, Climate Change, Racial Bias

A forum at the Nexus in the Dialogue between Science and Religion
Bishop LaTrelle Easterling engages experts in three areas impacting our children's future.

Free Registration:

Pre-Forum
light refreshments
Beginning at 2:15 PM

Door Prizes

Free parking

TO PARTICIPATE VIA

For those unable to participate in person, the entire event will be livestreamed on the internet. Watch alone, with your family, or better yet, organize a local discussion group in your place of worship or private home. Online attendees may email questions to EvolutionWeekendMD@gmail.com in real-time to the panelists. For remote participation instructions go to www.wesnex.org to register for the event.

Time & Place

TO ATTEND IN PERSON
Baltimore-Washington
United Methodist Conference Center
February 12, 2017, 3:00 – 5:00 PM
(come and go as your schedule permits)
11711 East Market Place, Fulton, MD
(located about 1/2 mile west of Route 29 on north side of Route 216)

LaTrelle Easterling
Bishop
BaltimoreWashington Conf.
United Methodist Church

Gary Sherman, Ph.D Veterinary Science and Agrosecurity Mind
Expanding
Door Prizes!
Tour of NIST with Nobel Prize
Winner
William
Phillips

Frank Niepold NOAA Climate Education Coordinator

Rev. Amy Stapleton General Commission On Religion and Race of the UMC

Major Co-Sponsor

Organized and Presented by WesleyNexus, Inc.
(a 501(c)(3) charitable organization

Major Co-Sponsor:

Evolution Weekend
The Clergy Letter Project

Sponsored by:

WesleyNexus, Inc., The Clergy Letter Project, Lutheran Alliance for Faith, Science and Technology
Presbyterian Assoc. on Science, Technology & Christian Faith, Episcopal Network for Science, Technology & Faith
United Church of Christ Science and Technology Network, Institute for Science and Judaism (ISJ)

Please consider adding your congregation/group to the sponsor list.

Just email WesleyNexus@aol.com

www.Wesnex.org

WesleyNexus@Aol.com